

THE GRAND RAPIDS TRIBUNE

(FORMERLY THE GRAND RAPIDS LEADER)

FIFTH YEAR, NO. 2034.

GRAND RAPIDS, WISCONSIN FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1920.

PRICE THREE CENTS

TRAFFIC TIED UP; TRAINS IN DRIFTS

ST. PAUL STUCK SEVERAL HOURS NEAR RUDOLPH

PASSENGERS SPEND HOURS IN TRAINS UNABLE TO PENETRATE SNOW BANKS

Traffic in and out of Grand Rapids was practically at a standstill last night with trains on three of the four roads snowed in and the entire force at work battling with the heavy drifts. North of Rudolph the St. Paul passenger, which regularly arrives here at noon from the north spent the afternoon and evening in a snow drift thru which it was unable to make any headway. The Northwestern road had run no trains on this division since Thursday noon when the train went south without mishap. The evening train ventured as far as Ripon and returned to Fond du Lac when they were informed that it would be impossible to battle their way thru the drifts between Ripon and this city. The Green Bay and Western afternoon train due here at 2:15 arrived at 9:00 last night after being stuck for several hours in a drift at Alma Center.

John Roberts Aboard

Attorney John Roberts was one of the snowbound passengers who spent Thursday afternoon and evening in the drift a half mile north of Rudolph. Mr. Roberts was returning to this city from Wausau. He stated that the drift was as high as the coaches on the windward side. They arrived there about two o'clock and became stuck. The assistance of an additional engine was to no avail and a third engine and snow plow was sent up from this city to clear the track. They too became stuck and it was only with the assistance of shovels that they were able to continue the journey. The train reached this city about 9:00 o'clock last night. The night train from the north arrived at 5:00 a. m. while the morning train due at 5:18 reached the city at 10:30 this morning. The noon train going south passed thru the city about twenty minutes late, Agent Leonard Bender stating that they had things cleaned up again and everything would probably go thru on time from now on.

Back to Fond du Lac

Reports from the Northwestern depo. state that there has been no train thru here on their road since yesterday noon, the night train coming as far as Ripon and returning to Fond du Lac. They expect a snow plow to reach this city from Fond du Lac some time this afternoon, followed by a passenger train from the south.

Green Bay Thru

The Green Bay train that was stuck in a drift at Alma Center yesterday was removed and reached the city last night at 9:00. The trip to Green Bay was not continued as the track between this city and Plover was impassable. A snow plow started from Green Bay yesterday reached the city early this morning. The snow between this city and Plover was the worst in history Agent A. D. Hill states.

The Soo Line suffered the least from snow, their afternoon train being delayed about five hours by the trains on the main line being late. It returned to Marshfield last night about eight o'clock. They are running on time today, they state.

Snow and Rain Coming

Chicago—Weather indications indicate that the central, western and Rocky Mountain states would have some relief from yesterday's temperature, tomorrow with fair weather but freezing temperature as far south as Mississippi and snow and rain of the upper Ohio Valley and Lake region.

OUR MISTAKE

In yesterday's daily Tribune there appeared the announcement of the candidacy of Grant Babcock for alderman of the eighth ward. It was stated that Mr. Babcock would oppose Ben Hansen at the coming election, which is not true, as Mr. Hansen is one of the aldermen, whose term of office does not expire at the coming election. Mr. Babcock is candidate for the vacancy to be left by Alderman Mike Lemense, who will not be a candidate for reelection as he has moved out of the city.

SNOW STORM CROWDS GRAND RAPIDS HOTELS

PASSENGERS BROUGHT IN ON BELATED TRAINS SPEND NIGHT HERE

Grand Rapids hotels were crowded to capacity with several seeking rooms in private homes when belated passenger trains stopped here for the night last night in preference to continuing the journey on thru the drifts which had made progress almost impassable.

All Were Crowded

D. G. Gerow of the Witler Hotel stated that they were filled to capacity with about fifteen or twenty reservations which had been previously made and the persons snowbound in other cities unable to get here. A like number were kept here unable to make their trips to other cities, he states. The hotel is crowded regularly in spite of the storm, Mr. Gerow states. The Hotel Dixon turned away several for lack of accommodations, they state, a few taking the Soo to Marshfield where they found quarters, while others found rooms in private homes.

Many Stayed Here

The Julian reported a crowded house several finding rooms there being snow bound in the city. Many who had intended leaving decided to remain in the city when they found that the trains were running several hours late with no certainty of getting thru.

CIRCUIT COURT CALENDAR LONG

Troop five won from troop one by a score of four to one. This is Troop 5's first game and they hope to do better next week when they play Troop 2. The members of the troop's five are:

Anton Maciejewski, center; Leo Kolenda, forward; Emil Pionek, forward; Ray Jackan, guard; Alex Mroczek, guard; Benjamin Neighbor, substitute.

STEVENS POINT FISHING TACKLE FACTORY SOLD

PLANT FAMOUS FOR TROUT AND BASS FLIES CHANGES HANDS

Miss Carrie J. Frost, proprietor of the Frost Fishing Tackle Factory of Stevens Point, has sold the plant to a company which will be known as the Frost Fishing Tackle Company. The new company will assume charge April 1st. Otto Weber of Duluth, D. E. Frost and C. S. Orthman are the principal stockholders of the new company. Miss Carrie Frost remains as a director and stockholder.

Had Small Beginning

Miss Frost, who retires from active connection with the factory, established the business in a small way, but its growth was steady and it now occupies two two-story buildings and employs about 150 girls and women. The fishing tackle, principally flies, which it manufactures has become a standard all over the country under the trade name of "Waterwitch." The factory is the largest of its kind in the United States manufacturing fishing tackle exclusively.

COLTS ROLL WELL BUT LOSE TO CONSOLIDATED

ALLEYS SING WHEN BOYS PUT HIGH SCORES ON RECORD

The Colts and Consolidated teams rolled one of the best match games of the season on the Elks alleys last night when the Consolidated team won with a score of 2537 against a 2509 score rolled by the Colts. James G. Hamilton of the Colts broke several records when he piled up a score of 257 in the last game, Franson put up the high average when he rolled a total of 627 pins for the three games and an average of 209 for the series. The other scores were:

STONE MOUNTAIN SHEEP.

"Well," said Stephen Stone Mountain Sheep, "what have you to say for yourself?"

"I might ask the same question of you," said Sam Stone Mountain Sheep.

"Some folks," said Stephen, "call us black mountain sheep but we're really stone sheep even though we look so dark. We come from an old family of stone sheep."

"Of course it is rather mixing because there are so many different kinds of sheep," said Sam. "There are different relatives of ours, too. Take some of the sheep not far from us, and who sometimes are with us, they have white heads and gray-colored bodies."

"Then we live around the same parts of the country as the mountain goats do and the caribou family and the moose family and the families of some of the bears."

"But," said Stephen, "they couldn't get us mixed up with them."

"That's so," said Sam, "but there are a lot of sheep they could confuse us with. There are the Rocky Mountain Sheep and the Dall Mountain Sheep and the Fannin Mountain Sheep, oh, lots of us."

"But we may be like them, these others," said Stephen, "and still have our own special looks and ways."

"We have golden, amber-colored horns which are so graceful and which curve so exquisitely!"

"You don't flatter yourself," said Sam, laughing.

"I was speaking of you, too," said Stephen.

"That's so, of course," said Sam. "Well, that does make a difference." "I thought it would," chuckled Stephen.

"The heard people say," continued Sam, "that we were so friendly and that we traveled around in places where everyone could get to, so we should be protected."

"Nice and Amiable."

"What did they mean?" asked Stephen.

"They meant that we were rather fearless and so nice and amiable that we mightn't often be on the lookout for cruel enemies, and that, at least, people who always carry guns should be forbidden to attack us."

"Oh, that would be quite wonderful," said Stephen.

"Do you know," said Sam, "that people are more and more coming around to the belief that it is wicked to kill animals for the sake of killing them and boasting how many they have been able to get on a trip."

"Oh, that sounds so nice to my ears," said Stephen.

"People say that we're fine animals and that we should be protected, and the time is on the way when more and more and more people will study animals and will find out all they can about them and maybe take their pictures with cameras, but they won't go looking for us with their guns."

"Most animals deserve good treatment. They have their own good points and their own brave ones and their own unselfish ones, and soon, not so far away, people won't hunt for animals to destroy them!"

"Oh," said Stephen, "how you do cheer me up!"

"Yes," said Sam, "for no longer do boys think it is manly to hurt something which can't defend itself. No longer do they think it is fine to be brutally strong. Now they think their strength should be used to look after those who are weaker."

"And girls are doing their part in trying to look after the birds."

"So many girls, they've said, nowadays would not, for anything, wear a Paradise bird's plume or an cigarette from a heron."

"And so our family will not be wiped out," said Stephen.

"No, they say we deserve good treatment for we're fair and good and they say that we will get it!"

The Only Test.

It is often harder to face the criticism of friends than the censure of enemies. To feel that we are disappointing those who love us, is more bitter than to stand against the ridicule and scorn of those who hate us. But the test to which every action should be put is not whether it satisfies our friends, but whether our conscience can put upon it the stamp of its approval. Loyalty to principle may sometimes mean disappointment to our friends. Yet those who really love us would not have us anything but true to the best that is in us—girls' Cupid.

STATES RUSSIA HAS BEEN MOBILIZED

ARE FORCED TO FIGHT UNDER SUPERVISION OF COMMISSIONS.

The Hague—Russia has been entirely mobilized, the soldiers up to 35 years and the officers regardless of age, writes a staff correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad, who has just returned from a tour of Soviet Russia.

Forced to Fight.

"They are forced to fight under the permanent supervision of communists who are Bolsheviks to the backbone," he adds. "It is very simple. A soldier who betrays the Bolsheviks or forsakes his duty is shot; or if he succeeds in escaping, his family is killed in his place."

Study Details.

The correspondent who from articles appearing in his paper, apparently tried to view things from a fair and neutral standpoint, dined with several Bolshevik officers' mess while en route to Moscow from the Polish front and had an opportunity to study the Red Army in detail.

Soldiers Polite.

"The soldiers," he says, "are very polite and there seems to be a quiet and agreeable discipline. The pay is 800 rubles a month for a soldier, 3,200 for a company leader and 4,200 for a regimental leader. The former generals of the Czar's army, six of whom are now serving on Trotsky's staff, get 6,000 rubles a month. Nobody in Russia receives a larger salary, with the exception of Lenin, who now gets 8,000 rubles a month."

Commissars.

Every Red Army corps has a board of commissars, and besides there is a commissar for every regiment, battalion, brigade and division. They wear as a distinction a red star on the left breast on which are embroidered a hammer and a plough with a silver laurel branch all around and under it the distinction of their arms; a small machine gun, 2 crossed sabres, etc.

The officers in this army are called leaders, and they wear an arm band bearing the Soviet coat of arms, and embroidered beneath are the grade markings, one, two, three or four golden blocks.

"The Red Army," he says, "is not led by the young proletariat but by the decadent bourgeoisie."

Contrast Types.

The contrast between various types in the officers' mess at Kroepke (near the Polish front) proved striking, the correspondent says. "The brigade commander was a charming gentleman, formerly a colonel in the Czar's army and speaking beautiful French. Of the two commissars, one has almost an aristocratic appearance; the other is a big, tall, unshaven brute with a sinister face.

"After so long underestimating the strength of the Red Army, one must not now exaggerate it," the correspondent concludes, declaring that a year ago it would have been a ridiculous army, but that now its strength lies in the fact that its opponents are worse off."

STATE S. S. CONVENTION

Portage—April 20, 21 and 22 have been selected as the dates for the State Sunday School convention for the south-west section of Wisconsin to be held in this city. J. L. Rogers of Oshkosh, secretary of the Wisconsin Sunday School association; Walter Hutton, Des Moines, Iowa; Preston J. Orwig, of the International Sunday School association, and Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, well known Sunday School worker among women in the south, will address the convention. Several hundred delegates are expected.

RESIGNS POSITION

Appleton—R. A. Sinnen, business manager of the Post publishing company for eight years, has resigned his position to take effect April 1. Mr. Sinnen started with the Post about 25 years ago as a carrier boy and worked his way to the top. He is one of the best known newspaper men in the state. The Post publishing company was recently acquired by Green Bay interests who also took over the Appleton Crescent, consolidating the two papers under the name of Appleton Post-Crescent.

EUROPE PLEADS FOR AMERICAN MOTOR CARS

FULFILLMENT OF FOREIGN DEMAND WILL MEAN SHORTAGE IN AMERICA

Racine, Wis.—"Europe is pleading so hard for American-made automobiles that if the cable orders were filled, thousands of Americans would be compelled to do without new cars," says R. C. Rueschaw, vice-president of the Mitchell Motors Company, Inc., of Racine, Wis.

According to Mr. Rueschaw, England, France, Holland, Denmark, Africa, Australia and Germany are clamoring for cars and the Mitchell factory has been asked for as high as three hundred cars a month. "In the years past, the Europeans have insisted on right-hand drive cars equipped with magnetos, but they are perfectly willing to take the left-hand drive Mitchell Sixes and do not insist on magnetos or the detachable clincher tires that have always been popular abroad," says Mr. Rueschaw.

War Not Forgotten

"But we are not filling those orders, especially the ones from Germany, because the war has not been forgotten and American motorists would never forgive a company sending cars to Germany when there were not enough here at home. European production will not be reorganized for at least 18 months, but America will not be able to provide many cars because of the shortage in this country."

"Our production peak for Mitchell's is at its height now and this is the safest time to buy cars, because of delivery as well as price. The steel shortage, labor conditions, the coal strike and the uneven flow of raw materials will be felt from January to May more than now, because factories are running on supplies in stock. There can be no radical changes and the buyer looking for a car will do well to act quickly."

Bad Cold and Cough Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Several years ago C. D. Glass, Gardiner, Me., contracted a severe cold and cough. He tried various medicines but instead of getting well he kept adding to it by contracting fresh colds. Nothing he had taken for it was of any permanent benefit until a druggist advised him to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says "I was completely cured by this remedy and have since always turned to it when I had a cold and soon find relief."—Paid Advertisement.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—In a base hospital at Neuilly, France, his face disfigured beyond recognition, an American soldier serving in the French army attracts attention by his deep despondency. Asked by the surgeons for a photograph to guide them in making over his face, he offers in desperation a picture of the Savior, bidding them take that as a model. They do so, making a remarkable likeness.

CHAPTER II.—Invalided home, on the boat he meets Martin Harmon, New York broker, who is attracted by his remarkable features. The ex-soldier gives his name as "Henry Hilliard," and his home as Syracuse, New York. He left there under a cloud, and is embittered against his former fellow townsmen. Harmon makes him a proposition to sell mining stocks in Syracuse, concealing his identity. He accepts it, seeing in it a chance to make good and prove he has been undeserved.

CHAPTER III.—In Syracuse "Hilliard" (really Richard Morgan) is accepted as a stranger. He visits James Cullen, a former employer, relating a story of the death of Richard Morgan, and is surprised at the regret shown by Cullen and his youthful daughter Angela. While at the Cullen home Carol Durant, Morgan's former fiancee, makes a call.

CHAPTER IV.—Hilliard repeats to Carol his story of Morgan's death and is deeply moved by the evidence of her deep yearning for the supposed dead man. He resolves, however, to continue the deception.

CHAPTER V.—Next day Hilliard gathers from Angela that Carol had always loved Dick Morgan, and while delivering to her a letter supposedly from her former fiancee realizes that his affection is unchanged. His welcome by Doctor Durant, Carol's father, also shakes his resolution to continue the deception, but he conquers it.

CHAPTER VI.—In Syracuse Hilliard is looked upon as a capitalist and mining expert, and in that capacity, in pursuance of his object, interests Cullen in the possibility of wealth in mining properties. The Cullens and Hilliard go to the Durant home for dinner.

CHAPTER VII.—Observations at the Durants' convince Hilliard that the doctor and his daughter had always been his true friends, and his love for Carol becomes stronger. He realizes he has a dangerous rival in Jack Armstrong, also very much in love with Carol, and the two men tacitly agree to fight it out fairly.

CHAPTER VIII.—Despite his success in interesting capitalists of Syracuse in his mining venture (which he believes to be a sound proposition) Hilliard regrets having placed himself in such a false position, but in justice to Harmon feels he must go on. He makes confession to Carol of his love for her, and she admits the possibility of his affection being returned in time.

CHAPTER IX.—Rufus Waring, youthful suitor of Angela Cullen, jealous of Hilliard, becomes angrily watchful of the latter's business. Harmon visits Syracuse, and a prominent business man of the city, seeing them together, warns Hilliard of Harmon's reputation. Disturbed, Hilliard asks Harmon for an explanation, and the broker unguardedly admits a former swindle, and also that the mining proposition is a "fake." Hilliard threatens to make the knowledge public, but Harmon shows him he has made himself an accessory. Hilliard sees nothing but to go on with the deal.

CHAPTER X.—In an interview with Carol, deeply touched by her friendliness and interest in him, Hilliard almost determines to admit his duplicity, plead for forgiveness, and make a fresh start, but cannot nerve himself to the confession.

CHAPTER XI.—Armstrong, moved by a chivalrous feeling, admits to Hilliard that he is going to Montana to investigate properties which Hilliard represents, and the latter sees the end approaching. Harmon, to whom he has turned over the money he has collected, has paid him handsome commissions on the business done, and he determines to turn over to the subscribers all he possesses, in that way undoing to some extent the wrong he had unwittingly done.

CHAPTER XII.—At the Cullen home Rufus Waring confronts Hilliard with the accusation that the Montana property has little value. Cullen refuses to believe the story. Hilliard gives Cullen $8,000, all he has, to hold in trust, pending an investigation. From Angela, Hilliard learns that Carol has refused Armstrong's offer of marriage, for the reason that she is in love with Hilliard.

CHAPTER XIII.—Hilliard receives three telegrams from Harmon, ordering him to stop selling stock, and informing him he is on his way to Syracuse. On his arrival Harmon urges Hilliard to give up the game and make a start elsewhere, agreeing to return all money collected. While they are talking it over, Waring and Cullen call on Hilliard. Harmon offers to take back for cash all the stock they have subscribed for. Before any arrangement can be arrived at Harmon is stricken with apoplexy and dies in a few minutes. Hilliard then learns from Cullen of the discovery of an enormously rich vein of ore on the property—or which Harmon was of course aware—and realizes the depth of the brokers' duplicity, and also that his death has set Hilliard free.

CHAPTER XIV.—After a hurried journey to New York, where he had hastened to safeguard the interests of himself and his friends in the mining properties, Hilliard returns to Syracuse.

Chicago, Mar. 4—Eggs dropped from one to six cents on the Chicago Products market this morning. The greatest decline was registered by eggs comprising receipts from the farm when eggs went to 41 to 46 cents as compared to yesterday's price of 47 to 49 cents. All grades affected by the decline.

"Just a moment . . ." Hilliard took down the receiver. "Yes . . . Oh, yes, have him . . . no; hold the wire—" He beckoned hurriedly.

"Waring's Downstairs Now."

Hilliard. "Waring's downstairs now! You're ready to see him, aren't you?" The broker was suddenly plunged into uncertainty.

"Yes—no! No!" "What's wrong?" Hilliard was visited by an unwelcome chill; he tried to analyze it and couldn't.

The big man was breathing with difficulty. "I . . . you go down and . . . no, that wouldn't do either. . . . I want to see him alone. I want to get him to call off his investigator, so when we begin a new campaign we won't have any verified report against us on the old—"

"No, sir!" Hilliard shook his head smilingly. "I'm the man who's had to stand the gaff so far; I'm going to be in on any conferences. That's my play!"

Hilliard licked his lips again and swallowed repeatedly.

"Well . . . it's . . . if you let me do the talking then . . . or . . ."

Hilliard turned back to the transmis-

"Ask him to come right up," he said. He replaced the instrument and looked alarmingly at the broker. "You're not well!"

"Yes, I am. . . . Now let's get at that contract! There's no sense talking business until that's canceled, is there?"

As Hilliard stared at him an icy wave of suspicion swept him from head to foot.

"What's your hurry? It's my funeral, isn't it?"

"You are anxious, though! Har-

"No . . . no hurry at all. Only as long as I'm here . . . and the game's played out . . . as a favor to me . . . let's cancel it. Where is it? I . . . Good God, son, don't you want that thing out of the way? It's no good with an alibi on it! I'll put up the money—I—"

A sharp rap on the door stopped him short. Hilliard turned the knob; Waring and Mr. Cullen burst in.

"Why, Mr. Cullen!" he said in astonishment. "They didn't tell me you were here! Hello, Rufus."

"Hilliard!" Cullen's face was red and excited. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" He had seen Harmon.

Hilliard, taken utterly by surprise, began to phrase the introductions; he had only just begun when Harmon interrupted—Harmon with a set jaw and blazing cheeks. He was standing by the writing table, and one hand was resting heavily upon it. His manner was curiously apprehensive, curiously desperate.

"Ah! . . . Mr. Cullen . . . most happy, I'm sure . . . and Mr. Waring . . . delighted!" His voice was silken in its throatiness. "Gentlemen, I have the honor to be president . . . of the Silverbow Mining Corporation . . . He paused; his hands weaved aimlessly. "Of Montana. Gentlemen, . . . I hear there's been some adverse criticism of our property . . . you're stockholders. I understand . . . not used to criticism . . ." He flung his head erect. "I offer you personally . . . to relieve you . . . of any and all obligations . . . and pay back penny for penny." Here his knees shook and he swayed appreciably. He was holding himself upright only by tremendous, visible effort.

"The man's sick!" Cullen stepped toward him. Waring and Hilliard were standing fascinated. The broker warded off Cullen with both hands.

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December first. . . . You've paid sixty-two . . . I'm here . . . ease of distress . . . to write checks for the full amount paid down to date . . . I release you . . ."

"Release us!" Cullen all but yelled it, and with a note of exultation which was electrical to Hilliard.

"Release you . . . get a notary . . ." He sat down limply. "My check-book, Hilliard—for God's sake, get me my . . . check-book!" All at once he seemed to collapse; his head hung low, and his breathing became stertorous. His cheeks puffed queerly.

Hilliard sprang to him. "Rufus! Call the office! Get the house doctor!"

Cullen had raced to the bathroom for a glass of water; he raced back again, spilling half of it. Hilliard was chafing the broker's wrists. The three men strained at the unwieldy, unresisting bulk, while leaden fear clutched at their hearts.

The house physician hustled in to find the broker lying on the bed in a profound coma; his reflexes had gone from him; he couldn't be roused. There was no need of a stethoscope.

"Order me a big bug," said the man of medicine sharply. He himself was rattling among his vials for the calomel. Rufus was at the telephone.

"Anything I can do?" asked Hilliard earnestly. His suspicions had crystallized; and he was bitterly aware that the broker had planned not justice, but some new brand of perfidy; nevertheless, the man was unquestionably in danger—and revenge could wait.

"Nothing—just give me plenty of room!"

As the three stood watching painfully, Cullen put out his hand to Hilliard, and spoke under his breath.

"Henry—when did he come?"

"Only just now. An hour ago."

"Hadn't he told you? Or hadn't you heard it?"

"Heard what?"

Cullen motioned to Waring.

"Give it to him, Rufus . . . Oh, I see; I see—"

The law student, without a word, produced a yellow blank and thrust it at Hilliard. He flashed a glance of indescribable contempt at the supine broker; his eyes had lost some of their anxiety.

"Oh, the big crook!" he said boyishly. "The big crook!"

"Sh-h-h! Rufus!" Still, Hilliard, at heart, agreed with him to the letter.

The boy stood close to the masquerader.

"I'm sorry, Hilliard . . . it came at four this afternoon . . . we'd been hunting for you ever since . . ." Hilliard wasn't interested.

"I'll wait until—"

Cullen signed to him peremptorily. "Read it, I tell you! . . . I'll give you a shout on him!"

Hilliard peered over the foot of the bed; Harmon was still lying inert. The physician nodded sidewise.

"Nothing for you to do," he said grimly; and Hilliard, only partly aware of what he was doing, gave heed to the yellow blank.

The fourth telegram of the day was from Butte, Mont., addressed to Waring.

"Arrived here last night after delay in Chicago. This morning's papers contain information as follows: The faulted vein on XLNC property adjoining Silverbow claim number one has been located about twenty feet from Silverbow boundary. Indications are one body running at least eighty per cent average and some places high as twenty. Also some zinc and silver and traces of manganese. This evidently extends well into Silverbow, where the greatest values are undoubtedly lying, and judging from records of old XLNC vein it's a tremendously big strike." Understand XLNC owners offering large sum, said to be well over half-million, for a controlling interest. I strongly advise all of you to get aboard—for as much as Hilliard will let go. Am sending this from office of Cooley, Benjamin & Russell, who will not send separate report unless you want it. This is wonderful news and mine is sure winner, even if only a fraction as large as reported.

"Yes, I am. . . . Now let's get at that contract! There's no sense talking business until that's canceled, is there?"

As Hilliard stared at him an icy wave of suspicion swept him from head to foot.

"What's your hurry? It's my funeral, isn't it?"

"You are anxious, though! Har-

"No . . . no hurry at all. Only as long as I'm here . . . and the game's played out . . . as a favor to me . . . let's cancel it. Where is it? I . . . Good God, son, don't you want that thing out of the way? It's no good with an alibi on it! I'll put up the money—I—"

A sharp rap on the door stopped him short. Hilliard turned the knob; Waring and Mr. Cullen burst in.

"Why, Mr. Cullen!" he said in astonishment. "They didn't tell me you were here! Hello, Rufus."

"Hilliard!" Cullen's face was red and excited. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" He had seen Harmon.

Hilliard, taken utterly by surprise, began to phrase the introductions; he had only just begun when Harmon interrupted—Harmon with a set jaw and blazing cheeks. He was standing by the writing table, and one hand was resting heavily upon it. His manner was curiously apprehensive, curiously desperate.

"Ah! . . . Mr. Cullen . . . most happy, I'm sure . . . and Mr. Waring . . . delighted!" His voice was silken in its throatiness. "Gentlemen, I have the honor to be president . . . of the Silverbow Mining Corporation . . . He paused; his hands weaved aimlessly. "Of Montana. Gentlemen, . . . I hear there's been some adverse criticism of our property . . . you're stockholders. I understand . . . not used to criticism . . ." He flung his head erect. "I offer you personally . . . to relieve you . . . of any and all obligations . . . and pay back penny for penny." Here his knees shook and he swayed appreciably. He was holding himself upright only by tremendous, visible effort.

"The man's sick!" Cullen stepped toward him. Waring and Hilliard were standing fascinated. The broker warded off Cullen with both hands.

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December first. . . . "I'm sorry, Hilliard . . . it came at four this afternoon . . . we'd been hunting for you ever since . . ." Hilliard wasn't interested.

"It's all over," he said; paused, and added: "Apoplexy."

The only man in all America who could have testified to Hilliard's simulation had ceased to breathe.

CHAPTER XIV.

As Dr. Durant, having already given counsel this morning to seven patients, appeared at the door of the ante-room to signal to the eight, he was, palpably astonished at the presence of the young man who sat next to the door. The Doctor was very human; the Doctor was very adaptable; but for thirty years he had innately to keep the social and professional phases of his life entirely apart, and at the very first glance he was aware that Hilliard hadn't come to consult with him professionally. Nevertheless, he raised his finger in the usual sign; Hilliard followed him to the inner room.

MAJ. DALRYMPLE'S MANNERS

Maj. Dalrymple is either losing his head or he is being most outlandish-ly manhandled by the reporters. We think the major ought to calm himself. He is fretting unnecessarily. All will be well. Better times are coming, spring is with us, the teetotsoon shall chitter in the neighboring hedgerow and the citizenry will go on selling its pickles as heretofore.

The nation is going along about as usual. We are sorry the major thinks the country has stepped out of its course to josh him. If the nation tittered for a moment about the Iron River episode it now is tittering about something else. He would be a personable major indeed who could center the nation's laughter always.

There is nothing in the major's past to arouse ridicule. So far as we know he has served his country faithfully. He served as governor of savage tribes in the Philippines, which is our idea of nothing funny.
He broke up the drug traffic in the islands. He quit his law practice in San Francisco for the army and became an overseas intelligence officer.
Later he was in charge of liaison with the nationalistic groups and returned some valuable findings.

Good record this. But it is a record without newspaper reporters. Discretion is the better part of valor.
When the major governed savage tribes there were no reporters at hand, so the major was, perchance, discreet. Besides, the Moros couldn't read about what he proposed to do to them.

The reporters made it possible for the Iron River folks to know what to expect. So they expected the major.
A discreet and experienced revenue officer would not have been expected.
He would have percolated into town,
smoked a cigar with the home authorities, dropped a few wise hints, mentioned the efficacy of the federal courts, remarked upon the salubrity of the weather and percolated out again. In fifteen minutes one quiet man could have adjusted the whole affair.

The major meant well, no doubt,
with his talk of armed expedition and bringing out prisoners "in irons" and what not. He posed for a picture with a cigar clenched at a grim angle and fierce determination registered. He had everything in his favor except the little formalist of legal procedure. On this point the Iron Riverites called him.

This is one of the eccentricities of American life. When it sets out to be law abiding it is the all-firedest law abidingest thing in the world.
The major had the law, but he left it at home. Iron River had law and fetched it along.

The major made a mistake, that's
all. He should have laughed and reflected that it's going to be a long dry spell and a mistake now and then isn't going to ruffle the unending prospect so very much.

But the little mirthful deviation rattled the major so badly that he again forgot all about the rule-on discretion and valor, etc. So he roasted the newspapers and the "conspiracies" and one thing another. Like the king of France he marched up one hill and down again and now he marches up another. Calling names to newspapers is old stuff. It has been done.
It is not the first time an official has lost his caution.

But still we think the major is well meaning. Instead of telling his mission to Iron River he told it to the reporters and he's irritated because Iron River heard about it. Iron River can read. It is not a Moro village.

So we beg the major to cool off.
The intelligence department of the army should, unless it is a misnomer, have given him a hint or two.—Chicago Tribune.

SHOWS HOW THEY READ

Is it true that the older people grow the less they read? Are children reading more than grown folks?
If the index of the number of books drawn by school children proves anything it proves that children as they grow older read less.

Statistics offered by the city librarian show that in two schools, second grade children took out nearly four hundred books. In one of the same schools, the children in the seventh grade took out only eight books.

Here as well as anywhere else, children must be taught the value of reading and study. Those who venture opinions, those who want to converse interestingly with one another, ought to have a background of knowledge at least. Better citizens are the product of better training of the coming generations. What training can be had thru voluntary methods should be encouraged. Reading is one of the most effective ways.

THE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(By William Doudna.)

This is the last time the High School News appears under the present editor's name. Because of the lack of material mentioned in Wednesday's issue, he has found that the work of collecting and writing this department interferes with his school work. Any student wishing the editorship of this department can secure same by applying to Mr. Baldauf.

Today was travel day in the Junior English classes. Washington and New Orleans were the cities discussed.

The samples of caps and gowns for graduation have arrived and the Seniors are trying to decide whether or not they will graduate in them.

About one hundred packages of seeds from Senator LaFollette have come and are being distributed among the High School gardeners.

SOCIETY EVENTS

Entertains at Bridge

Miss Jane Taylor entertained a few friends at bridge at her home on Fourth and Witter streets Wednesday evening.

Young People's Meeting

The Young People's Society of the West Side Lutheran church held a meeting at the Assembly Hall, Wednesday evening. A short musical program was rendered after which a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Camp-fire Association

The semi-monthly meeting of the Camp-fire Guardians and Assistants of Neosho, Port Edwards and Grand Rapids met Thursday evening at Tarry Inn at Nekoosa. The hostesses were the Misses Lombard and Vesey. A short program was rendered after which a large amount of interesting business was transacted. Plans were made to hold a Grand Council in April.

E. F. U. Meeting

The E. F. U. Order held their annual supper at the lodge rooms, on Thursday evening. Places were set for one hundred guests and supper was served during the evening from 9:00 until 11:00. After a short business session nine new members were initiated into the order. The evening was spent in playing cards and social converse.

PERSONAL MENTION

Miss Esther Kester, who has been employed in Chicago is visiting with relatives and friends in the city.

Mrs. Chester Feavel left yesterday for Madison to care for Mrs. M. J. Feavel who is ill.

Lee C. Rumsey, who is employed at the postoffice, is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. Wm. McGlynn has returned from Janesville where she spent several days visiting her son, Douglas and friends.

Miss Irene Summers left today for Chicago where she will transact business for the Poirier Hat Shop.

John Brandt was a business visitor in Wausau Tuesday.

Edw. A. Arpin visited relatives at Waupaca Thursday.

P. C. Daly transacted business in Marshfield Thursday.

Jack Carrigan of Chicago is a business visitor in the city. He has established an agency in Chicago for his automatic stoker.

Mrs. Frank Schueling and children have returned to their home at Wausau after visiting relatives and friends in the city the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Groskopf and daughter, Frances, who have been spending the past few months at Rockford, Ill., will arrive in the city soon to make their future home here.

Mrs. Susan Baines, who has been spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. M. A. Dougherty, First Street North, will leave Sunday for Duluth where she will visit her daughter for some time.

Mrs. Mary Dougherty, 7th Street, is very ill at her home.

Mrs. T. Mills is visiting friends and relatives in LaCrosse for a few days.

Charles Smith, superintendent of the Green Bay & Western R. R., came to the city yesterday with the snow plow on the Green Bay R. R. from Green Bay.

WISCONSIN BREVITIES

GOOD PROFIT

Manitowoc, Wis.—The city's municipal water power plant earned a profit of $14,370.00 and the light department of $20,337.00 for the past six months.

SERIES OF LECTURES

Appleton—Pleased by the success of the first series of lectures and entertainments presented under the auspices of the Appleton Community Lecture and Artist Series association, officers of the association are preparing for another series in 1920 and 1921. Seven of the ten numbers in the 1919-1920 series have been presented. The final number will be a lecture by former president W. H. Taft in May.

ELECTRICITY FURNISHED

Appleton—Electric light and power lines of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company may soon be extended to Shawano if that city accepts the local company's proposition to purchase its municipal power plant, dispose of it and furnish current from the Appleton power house. A special election will probably be held to dispose of the matter. The Appleton company is now furnishing light and power to more than a dozen cities and villages and operates a street railway line.

ARMENIAN RELIEF

Appleton—Determined that Outagamie county shall not fail in what is probably the last financial drive as a result of the World war, men and women in charge of the Armenian relief campaign here are working with renewed vigor. About $10,000, enough to care for about 110 orphans for a year, has been raised in two weeks, with several towns still to be heard from. The county's quota is $15,000. Kaukauna is the only city which has raised its full quota.

GONE TO FLORIDA

Neenah—Harry Cook, only son of the late S. A. Cook, has gone to Miami, Fla., on account of his health, accompanied by Mrs. Cook. He has been ill for many weeks in a New York hospital. For several years Mr. Cook has been in charge of paper mills at Alexandria, Ind.

56TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Appleton—Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Fox, residents of Appleton since 1868, celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary March 1. The couple was married in Waupun in 1864 and moved to Appleton four years later. Mr. Fox has been obliged to use crutches for 12 years, but is still active and last year cultivated a large garden. He is 77 years old and his wife is five years his junior.

RURAL CARRIERS COMPLAIN

Appleton—Rural mail carriers working out of the Appleton post office have served notice to their patrons that unless they immediately remove the snow from their roads they run the risk of having their mail service cut off. Carriers assert that unless the snow is removed at once the roads will be impassable when spring thaws commence. In many places the roadbeds are on the top of snow drifts five feet deep, the carriers say.

WILL ERECT ADDITION

Sheboygan—The Northfield Company, manufacturers of couches and davenport, will erect a large four-story addition to its plant, ground to be broken as soon as the weather permits. The proposed new building is to replace sheds which have become inadequate for present needs.

DEMOCRATS HOPING TO SAVE TREATY DEADLOCK

PLAN TO DRAW COMPROMISE FOR REPUBLICANS ARTICLE X.

Washington, Mar. 5—Still hoping the treaty may be saved from another dead-lock, Democrat Senators sought today to lay direct before President Wilson the latest proposal discussed as a probable compromise basis to Article X.

Would Substitute X.

While re-consideration of the republican reservation proceeded in the Senate, Senator Hitchcock, administration leader, is understood to have written the President asking that he see administration Senators and give them his view to whether he would accept the compromise proposal now under consideration. These proposals are said to contemplate a change in the republican article 10 reservation so that military offices and other specified agents would be named as means which the United States would decline to use to preserve the integrity of their members.

Plan To See Wilson.

The move for the conference with the President is said to have grown out of negotiations which have been in progress for several days under the charge of Senator Simonson for the democratic side. Yesterday the democratic Senator who went to the White House did not see Mr. Wilson and after a talk with Senator Tumulty is said to have returned to his colleagues without a definite idea whether the President would accept the compromise proposal.

Senator Hitchcock is understood to have suggested in his letter that the President see Senator Simonson before article 10 reservations come to an other vote. The democrats did not care, it was pointed out, to bring a ratification which the President would disregard by pocketing the treaty.

In their negotiations Senators Watson and Simonson are understood to be working with full confidence of the leaders of the two parties.

ELK HERD AT TROUT LAKE IN GOOD SHAPE

BIG HERD ON STATE RESERVATION WITHSTANDS COLD WEATHER

The deep snow and extreme cold of the past winter has not affected the health of the Wisconsin herd of Elk on the State Reservation at Trout Lake, according to State Conservation Commissioner C. L. Herrington, of Madison, who has recently returned from a visit to the northern area.

Of the seven calves born last spring, only four are left, three having died last month. The cause for their death is a matter of uncertainty but the ultra-belligerance of the bull elk in the inclosure is believed to blame rather than any sickness.

To Enlarge Reservation
The Trout Lake inclosure at present is 280 acres, but extensions are being made from time to time and it is expected the total will be 600 acres when complete. In this are two bull elk, 14 does and the four calves. The new land includes some swamps with Labrador tea and balsam thickets—plants of high medicinal value for the animals.

A large annual increase in the herd is expected to follow now, as the herd is declared to be in the best condition since the first two cows were brought from Montana several years ago. Of those two, one escaped from the pen or died and was never found. Some time later 28 were brought, all in very poor condition—so poor that four or five died within a week after arrival.

This spring some ten calves are expected. To prevent inbreeding, the yearling spikehorn from the Madison zoo has been shipped to Trout Lake, being exchanged for one of the bulls there.

CAMELS ORGANIZED

Milwaukee—In speaking of Judge Geiger's decision in federal court upholding the concurrent power of the various states to define what is an intoxicating drink, Secretary C. R. Diegle of the Order of Camels, organized to combat prohibition, said: "This means only another bitter fight as I expect the 'drys' to take this to the U. S. Supreme court. The Camels at present have a membership of 5,000 in Wisconsin, but by the next election we will have over 50,000 this being a protest against the present dry laws."

I'M WELL! YOU WELL?

STERIZOL THE ANTISEPTIC PREVENTS DISEASE

Don't worry about the high price of jams, jellies and preserves. Serve Karo, the Great American Sweet. Buy it by the dozen cans.

An important message. Read it!

AMONG the twenty odd million American Homes there is probably not a single one where Karo is not served in some manner—for breakfast, for dinner or for supper.

During these days of high prices, Karo has become another word for economy. Thousands of thoughtful housewives have learned that Blue Label Karo is not only a delicious spread for pancakes, but answers every purpose where a sweet is needed.

Instead of paying the present high prices for jams, jellies and preserves—serve Blue Label Karo on sliced bread, toast, pancakes or waffles.

Do as the wise cooks are now doing: Use Karo to stew dried fruit, prunes; use it for candied sweet potatoes, brown bread, muffins, coffee cake and puddings.

Karo Home-made Candy is the best for children. It is wholesome, easy to make, costs much less than store candy.

Mothers give children Blue Label Karo and sliced bread because it satisfies Nature's craving for sweets and takes the place of candy.

IMPORTANT

There never was such a demand for Blue Label Karo as today. Housewives everywhere are buying it by the dozen cans. Ask your grocer the price per dozen. For economy's sake buy it this way.

SAYS POWER OF HOUSE COMMITTEE IS LIMITED

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEYS CLAIM THEY CAN ONLY DETERMINE ELIGIBILITY

Albany, Mar. 4—The Assembly Judiciary Committee which is investigating charges of disloyalty against the five Socialist members of the Lower House, has power only to pass upon the qualification and eligibility of the suspended members, Morris Hillquist, chief counsel for the defendants declared yesterday when he began the summing up.

The resolution passed by the Assembly which unseated the five socialist assemblymen and authorized the investigation, Mr. Hillquist asserted the resolution directed the Judiciary Committee to investigate into the qualifications and eligibility of the five unseated members and to report on them. It has no other authority under the resolution, he added.

MEXICO WANTS RIGHT TO IMPORT ARMS FOR WAR

WOULD LIFT BAN PROHIBITTING SHIPMENTS

Washington, March 4—Mexico is said to be preparing to demand permission to import arms and munitions of war from the United States. Hilario Anedina, sub-secretary of Foreign Affairs in a statement which has been reported to the State Department has announced that as a result of the retirement of Robert Lansing as secretary of state it is probable that the Mexican demand will be permitted.

Because of the unsettled conditions in Mexico, the State Department has for several years refused to permit war munitions to be exported to Mexico except in a few instances.

Investigation shows that the rebels secured munitions.

For a Persistent Cough.

Some years ago H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., had been troubled for a long while with a persistent cough which he says, "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption." Having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised he concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the small size was permanently cured."—Paid Advertisement.

REFUSE SALARY RAISE TO WAUTOMA TEACHERS*HOLD TEACHERS TO CONTRACTS MADE EARLIER IN YEAR

The teachers of the Wautoma schools presented a petition to the Wautoma School Board last week asking for a substantial increase in salaries for the remainder of the year or a bonus at the end of the year. After discussing the situation pro and con at a meeting of the Board they decided not to grant an increase for the remainder of the year. The teachers gave out the information that they were not taking the attitude of strikers, but felt that it was no more than just that they receive extra pay. The Board took the position that the teachers had signed contracts and should live up to those contracts for the remainder of the year, that they should be willing to abide by them at the salary agreed upon.

TOM THUMB FURNITURE IS WILLED TO MUSEUMMINIATURE FURNITURE INCLUDES GIFTS FROM NO-BILITY

Plymouth, Mass., Mar. 4.—The home furnishings of Mrs. Lavinia W. Majri (Mrs. Tom Thurab) who died recently will be placed in a museum by the terms of her will which has been filed here.

The collection is said to include furnishings in use. Two miniature sewing machines and a piano are among the pieces. Several of the articles were gifts from European Royalty before whom she preformed.

BROUGHT GOOD PRICE

Stevens Point, Wis.—One of the largest farm deals ever made in Portage county was consummated recently when Edward Hanson of Waupaca county purchased from George W. Fleming the latter's farm southeast of Amherst village, for the consideration of $43,350. The new owner is to take charge of his property at once. The deal involved 289 acres of land, all of the buildings and some personal property. Mr. Fleming reserved 40 acres of land joining the John VanSkiver farm.

The Fleming farm is considered one of the best in Portage county. It is splendidly located a mile from Amherst and has all the natural advantages to make it a perfect dairy farm. The new owner is a young man who has made a success of farming near Sheridan, Waupaca county. He has sold the Waupaca county farm of 112 acres to Henry Indestad of Waupaca.

INSPECTOR HERE

Postoffice Inspector J. A. Niles of Necedah spent Thursday in the city looking up matters pertaining to the postoffice lease. The lease on the present building expires in September, and as there is no indication that there will be a federal building here for some time to come, there is some question where the building will be located.

Received another shipment of coats, suits and dresses. Have you selected yours yet? If not do so at once while you have a good selection. I. E. Wilcox.

DEVELOP WATER POWER

Ashland—T. N. Okerstrom and others have organized a company to develop the water power of Iron River, Wisconsin, near Orienta, and have secured control of a thousand acres of land in the vicinity. Orienta Falls is one of the sights admired by auto parties along the south shore of Lake Superior, and at the falls there is a head of nearly a hundred feet. All of the rivers entering Lake Superior from the south are very short and rapid, and susceptible of the development of considerable water power. The Brule river is practically one set of rapids after another, with a considerable fall in one place south of Winnebago. The Wisconsin watershed is so near Lake Superior that the drop to the lake is abrupt and rapid. Within the past few years immense water power has been developed at the mouth of Montreal River, Bad River near Mellen, White River near Ashland, with considerable power which may be developed later, on all three rivers. Practically every stream on the south shore of Lake Superior in Wisconsin has undeveloped water power, which may play a considerable figure in the development of this region.

MRS. COPPS DEAD

Stevens Point—Mrs. Clinton W. Copps, wife of one of Stevens Point's leading young business men and president of the Community Club, died following a short attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Copps was Janet Wilson, youngest daughter of Rev. S. W. Wilson, D. D., former pastor of Congregational churches at Wausau, Reedsburg and other Wisconsin cities.

WILL ERECT STORE

Neenah—The Neenah-Menasha Supply company, a corporation fostered by four of the leading equity societies in this vicinity, have purchased a piece of downtown business property and will erect thereon a general store and fuel storage house. The company expects to have the establishment in operation early in the spring.

RE-INCORPORATED

Sheboygan—The Pinehurst Farm company which owns one of the largest and best pure bred stock farms in Wisconsin, has been re-incorporated with Peter Reiss, Karl L. Juve and Reuben H. Larson as stockholders. Juve and Larson will be the active managers of the farm in the future. The property consists of 300 acres.

SECTIONAL MEETINGS

This case is to be argued next week.

At the same time W. Marshall Bullock of Louisiana asked the court to hear arguments next Monday on appeal brought by the Kentucky district.

GOOD ROADS CONGRESS DATE

Ninth Annual Gathering to Be Held in Louisville, Ky., During February, 1920.

The ninth American Good Roads congress, under the auspices of the American Road Builders' association, will be held in Louisville, Ky., the second week in February, 1920. A good roads show will be held at the same time.

Influence of Good Roads.

The influence of good roads on social and economic conditions, upon the development of industrial and farming pursuits and the promotion of business is recognized in the majority of the communities of this country.

Factor in Education.

The increasing use of the automobile has been the greatest factor in educating the people, particularly of rural communities, in the importance of good roads.

New Science Developing.

Road building is developing a new science that calls for the highest engineering skill.

C. W. Rickman and wife were business callers in Grand Rapids Tuesday.

Mr. Hastings lost a valuable horse last week by being kicked by another horse.

Mr. Riggs had the veterinary out to his farm Monday. He has lost 14 head of cattle this winter. Better hay and warmer shelter was needed, he reported.

Fred Hetzel, one of our industrious young men, was married in Rudolph Wednesday, March 3. His uncle and near relatives went over to the wedding. Congratulations, Fred.

Roy Vaughner, wife and daughter, were visitors at the Wm. Yetter home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stine and daughter, Grace, of Plainfield, were visitors at the Live Wilson place the fore part of the week. Mr. Stine remained over a few days to help Live haul logs.

Louise Hetzel came home from Milwaukee Saturday to attend her brother's wedding. She expects to return soon.

Kellner school is closed for a few days on account of mumps. The teacher has them.

Mrs. August H. Miller and family have their goods all packed for shipment to Milwaukee where they will make their future home.

John Brunes is moving on a farm up near Coddington.

Wm. Yurge and wife from Grand Rapids were visiting at the Wm. Brumhastad home the past week.

The death of Lottie Bermeister of Saratoga came like a flash of lightning from a clear sky, as we had not even heard of her sickness. She will be remembered by this community as Lottie Peterson who clerked at Munroe Co. Store a few years ago. She leaves a husband and four small children. We certainly extend sympathy to the husband and children.

Mrs. Truman Fay of Wautoma is visiting at the Munroe home this week.
